Monday, December 27, 2004 - 10:00 AM

That catastrophe moves your heart, my child; it is a prelude to much harder times when this planet will not be spared. So many sufferings for a country already plagued by poverty—an ordeal, giving rise to a lot of compassion worldwide.

"India is a spiritual headlight on this planet; so has it always been and nobody, here below, can change that situation. Man cannot easily understand the great divine principles. Why is this country so affected? Why must those men or those women undergo all those ordeals? No satisfactory answer can be given to them, except those already known, and which those who are suffering cannot easily accept. May all these beings have the refuge of faith, the supreme recourse in such circumstances. May those who are spared have a lot of compassion and love to give them.

"Man can only bow before the divine power. The more it manifests itself the more it will lead man to wonder about his smallness, and what he has done with his life, especially if he wants to ignore God and lead his life without referring to Him. In this matter, our brothers have a good grounding; they are following a way and are doing their level best as far as their conscience is concerned, while relying on the spiritual Master leading our Mission. Our way enlightens them on the realities motivating their process. They are committed and thus take part in a movement that is emerging in this world, and which will not go unnoticed in the future.

"May all our brothers be blessed and helped in their fights, particularly those who today are severely affected."

Babuji