Sunday, June 29, 2003 - 10:00 AM

Write as you are used to do; although purists may give their opinion on the syntax of these texts, they will exist nonetheless and will help those who, instead of being conformist, will actually intend to go beyond and find a true teaching therein. It is not easy to reconcile everything. Writing through channelling is not equivalent to drafting a highly advanced literary text. These messages exist and they will touch the hearts of men, in spite of the few stylistic weaknesses they may contain. Please proceed as you usually do, in terms of serving us as best you can.

"Our books are not masterpieces and models of writing either. They sometimes repel perfectionist people, unable to see their hidden contents that are beyond superficial appearances. With time, and through repeated reading, they sometimes reconsider their judgment. The main thing has been said and written. Nothing more needs to be said, my dear daughter.

"Our Mission is starting a long process over time. Many followers, coming from all social backgrounds, and converging under the protection of the Masters representing it, will follow it. Spiritual ways like ours bring hearts together, without race discrimination and any prejudice whatsoever. This is a very important aspect. To God and a Master whom they trust, our brothers and sisters are all alike. We do not have to make discriminations: that is not our purpose. It is highly essential to work for the good of humanity, in a very broad spirit and with tolerance. Our blessings are directed to all, without exception; we do assure our brothers on this aspect."

Babuji